New(er) Courses

GPP301 - Leadership and Peer Support (Grade 11 course)

True belonging doesn't require us to change who we are. It requires us to be who we are. ~Brené Brown

This course focuses on the development of critical interpersonal skills and promotes student participation in both school and community life. Students will develop skills in communication, interpersonal relations, teamwork, and conflict management; and apply those skills in leadership and/or peer support roles. Students will examine group dynamics and learn the value of diversity within groups and communities.

New(er) Courses

HPC301 - Raising Healthy Children (Grade 11 course)

This course will focus on the skills and knowledge parents and caregivers need when raising children. This course will also focus on the importance of maternal health, pregnancy, birth, and the early years of child development (birth to six years old). Through both study and practical experience, students will learn what the developmental needs of children are and how to best meet them. Students will also learn about the importance of communication and how to best communicate to help in socializing children and teaching them. Students in this course will also learn how to best meet the behavioural needs of children and will learn how to prepare those children for school and relationships. Students will also learn how to guide children in their early behaviour and will learn about their importance in this skill. Students will develop their research skills through investigations related to parenting and child rearing.

New(er) Courses

IDC401 - History through Film (Grade 12 course)

History through Film is a course about understanding world History. While Hollywood movies skew the past to meet the demands of drama, spectacle, and interest – and documentary films are often no better- film can also propel a fuller imaginative grasp of a historical period. The course's goal, is to bring critical intelligence to film as a medium for understanding and presenting the past. By the end of the course, students should be able to assess the different approaches taken to present past historical events by film-makers, to defend their own point of view on given films, and most importantly to explain the advantages and disadvantages of film as a way to present and understand history.
