Dear Parents and Guardians:

Learning Disabilities Symposium

Our students and families have expressed great interest in “diving deeper” and learning more about Learning Disabilities and Special Education in our schools. As a result of many wonderful and positive dialogues, the Equity and Inclusivity Team is making a commitment to providing parents and students with several opportunities to attend workshops and information sessions that will include a wide range of topics linked to Special Education. This month we have had the opportunity to invite Matthew Cote and Rashmee Karnad-Jani and her students as our guest speakers.

Dear families and students, my name is Matthew Cote and I am 18 years old with a learning disability. During the course of the summer, I will be a Tutor in the classroom. I have spent the last two summers working with Autism Ontario at the Summer Camp as a counselor. I just completed my first year at Trent University something that I have worked very hard to achieve during my grade twelve year in high school. I was really excited to be asked to speak at Legacy Public School and to be able to share my experiences with families and students. I aspire to be a teacher in the York Region District School Board and to be able to inspire students to achieve their best.

Rashmee Karnad-Jani began her work with LDAYR (Learning Disability Association of York Region) as a volunteer tutor in 2002. She is currently a teacher at Cedarwood PS in the YRDSB and teaches students with Learning Disability (LD), Mild Intellectual Disability (MID) and Autism. She is a strong Social Justice advocate and works with students and communities to support understanding of LD as well as making support available for students. Rashmee has published a book and two anthologies of poems and short stories, a book of poems written by her students as well is working towards completion of her Master’s Thesis from York University. She has a degree in Biology from the University of Mumbai and a Bachelor of Education from York University. She also has specialist qualification in literacy for adolescents and special education.

We are looking forward to spending the evening with parents and students. Please save the date and time.
